ADVANTAGES AND DISADVANTAGES

Is using animals for medical research necessary?

Many people say that using animals for medical research is necessary, but others feel that it is very cruel. This is a very difficult question. We must consider arguments against and in favour.

One point of view in favour is that people are more important than animals. A further advantage is that you can see the result before you use the medicines with children.

On the other hand, some animals are almost human, like dogs. They are pets and also company for people. In addition, they have rights and we should treat them nicely.

In conclusion, I believe that both arguments are important, so we should test drugs in other type of animals, like rats.
